WATERFRONT PARK

The 7-acre Waterfront Park connects the entire development with an inviting, greened area for the public to enjoy. It was essential to the development's vision of making the waterfront accessible to everyone. The extension of the Waterfront Renaissance Trail through the park now integrates the Waterfront Park with the surrounding community, giving urban riverfront access to residents for the first time in over 100 years.

The park experience is the result of a partnership between internationally recognized designers. Landscape architects PWL Partnership made the river the chief inspiration for its winding, flowing design. With nine pillars erected in the park to celebrate the life-giving power of water and featuring quotes like, "Water comes together in the sacred places," from Raymond Carver. Public art designer Larry Kirkland envisioned the state-of-the-art pier and Headwaters Wall as community gathering places that educate and inspire. Architectural lighting design firm Fisher Marantz Stone helped make use of the nighttime environment with dramatic lighting that gives the park excitement and accessibility after dark.

TH

CABLE-STAYED PIER

The cable-stayed pier is the centerpiece of The Waterfront Vancouver. Larry Kirkland envisioned a cantilevered pier suspended above the mighty Columbia River, evoking the hull and mast of a ship. This connection to the river is reinforced by an image of the Columbia Rediviva, a ship that is the Columbia River's namesake, on the pier's anchorage. The pier is a powerful symbol of Vancouver's reconnection with its waterfront and a thrilling visual backdrop while exploring the park. The pier is lit by architectural lighting design firm Fisher Marantz Stone to highlight the brilliant white pier against the night sky.

HEADWATERS WALL

Headwaters Wall is an educational art installation within the park that teaches about the Columbia River Watershed.

Designed by Kirkland, the wall features a bronze topographical map of the watershed and shows park visitors how water affects their environment. The wall area also includes a water play feature, creating a hands-on experience for children and visitors of all ages.

LARRY KIRKLAND

PUBLIC ART DESIGNER

Larry Kirkland is a world-renowned designer inspired by the power of public art to create a sense of community. Kirkland's process integrates historical research and extensive collaboration with community leaders and design professionals to create installations that educate about the past with a goal of inspiring future generations. He believes that public art should reflect the community it serves and seeks to capture the qualities that make a place unique when creating his large-scale, multi-dimensional works.

Kirkland is known for the American Veterans

Disabled for Life Memorial in Washington, D.C. and a series of installations in Concourse C at the Portland International Airport, Columbia, Tower, and State of O. He has also done extensive work abroad, including at the Putra World Trade Center in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; Kansai International Airport in Osaka, Japan; and Hong Kong Central Station.

VANCOUVER, WASHINGTON CITY LIBRARY

COLUMBIA RIVER RENAISSANCE TRAIL

COLUMBIA RIVER BRIDGE

VIBE OF VANCOUVER, WA

Vancouver has come a long way from its humble beginnings. Once known for processing forest products, it is now known as a hub for technology firms. Companies like Hewlett-Packard and Apple put roots in the area years ago and other similar companies have followed. Over time Vancouver has become a bustling, progressive urban center of the Pacific Northwest.

In 1997, the City of Vancouver began a process of revitalizing its downtown core. Many new iconic structures were commissioned in that period, including the Fort Vancouver Regional Library, City Hall, and the renovation of Esther Short Park. These waterfront-adjacent developments set the scene for a re-imagining of what was possible downtown.

Vancouver is continuing to shed its industrial roots and embrace its role as a new regional destination. Young professionals are relocating to Southwest Washington seeking work and downtown living near hip bars, restaurants, and shops. The downtown renaissance is changing the city and The Waterfront Vancouver is the next part of that transformation.

VANCOUVER WATERFRONT HISTORY

The native Chinook people, expert traders and fishermen, were the stewards of the Vancouver waterfront until the 19th century. In 1889 the Michigan Mill established lumber processing as a regional industry.

The Waterfront Vancouver continued to establish its industrial character at the turn of the 20th century. The G.M. Standifer Construction Corporation built two shipyards at the current site of The Waterfront Vancouver which produced ships for use in World War I. The I-5 bridge opened in 1917 to connect Washington and Oregon by vehicle for the first time. World War II saw the revival of shipbuilding in Vancouver at the Kaiser Shipyards and the city's population boomed.

In the late 1940's a new paper mill was constructed at The Waterfront Vancouver site. It was eventually operated by Boise Cascade as part of a sprawling waterfront mill complex for decades. The mill closed in 2006 and Columbia Waterfront LLC purchased the property in 2008.
